NEBRASKAN WHO OPENS SENATE WAR ON SUGAR TRUST

Washington, Nov. 30.—Senator Elmer J. Burkett, of Nebraska, has prepared a resolution, which he intends to present to congress, calling for a thorough investigation of the sugar trust. He declared on his arrival at the capital that his resolution would not in any way interfere with the work of the department of justice, but that he was determined, if possible, to have the trust's affairs probed to the bottom, so that the men primarily responsible for killing off competition in the sugar business and perpetrating the customs frauds against the government might be brought to justice.

Molloy Not Satisfied With $2,000 Profit

The second trial in connection with the Water street land purchase by the city of New Haven last winter was completed so far as testimony in court was concerned yesterday afternoon when the evidence and testimony in the action of Thomas H. Molloy, ex-alderman from the Fifth ward against Thomas P. Bourke for a larger share of the profits of the transaction came to a close. Instead of hearing the arguments of the attorneys in the case, it was decided to have the attorneys for each side submit briefs and court adjourned with the case postponed until the briefs shall be submitted and the case be ready for a decision.

In the course of the case yesterday Molloy testified to taking a share in the deal and claimed that he had not received what he considered his proper share of the profits. He said he had received $2,500, of which $2,000 represented his net profit on the deal.

An attempt was made by the defense to show that Molloy was not financially able to take a regular quarter share in a $5,000 transaction but this was ruled out as immaterial. It was brought out, however, that he had only put in $100 up to a few days before the transaction was completed.

Mrs. Pankhurst Says She's Going to Jail

New York, Dec. 1.—"When I go back to England," said Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant little English suffragette, "I am going to serve thirty days in jail with ninety others, and I shall tell you now that there will be another hunger strike. We shall refuse to submit to being stripped and searched in jail, and shall resist until we are overwhelmed by force. We shall refuse to eat prison food, not because of the sort of food it is, but because we think this a good method to gain our end. If any of us dies in prison, heaven help the government candidates at the following general election."

Cooper Union was jammed last night, mostly with women, as Mrs. Pankhurst, on the eve of her departure for England today, made this spirited declaration as she would up her campaign for the cause in this country.

FORMER YALE ATHLETE DOWNS DARTMOUTH STAR

It has become known that Miss Orithylla Wales Knapp of Newburyport, Mass., secretly married James J. Healy, a former Yale athlete, at Montreal last June. This followed a suit for $20,000 for breach of promise brought by Howard E. ("Jake") Smith, once a famous Dartmouth athlete.

DRUGGISTS MAY SELL LIQUOR AT ALL TIMES

Member of Trade Points Out the Excise Laws Regulating Its Sales.

"Anyone over 21 years of age, not intoxicated, and not posted by the town authorities, may buy liquors of druggists on Christmas day, or any other day except Sunday without breaking the law," declared a prominent druggist discussing the excise regulations of his trade with a Farmer reporter today. "If noticed in the Farmer that 'Observer' apparently placed the wrong construction on the statement that drug stores would be allowed to sell liquor on Christmas day."

"Druggists," he continued, "are issued a special license to sell liquors in lots of one gallon or less—not to be drunk on the premises. In the first place, no druggist of professional standing will allow liquor to be drunk on his premises on Christmas day or any other day. The law regulating the sale of liquor on Christmas day states very plainly that saloons must close on that day because liquor is sold there to be drunk on the premises."

"Druggists can not legally sell on Sunday except on a physician's prescription but they can sell any other time. On Sunday the same practice is followed in selling liquor as in the case of poison. The prescription with name, etc., must be filed away, and it cannot be filled a second time."

"This is my understanding of the law," said the druggist. "If 'Observer' can find any statute to the contrary let him bring it forth."

INSTRUCTION IN HOUSE BUILDING

Course is Open to 16 Young Men, Who Will Do Practical Work.

Young men who are learning the carpenter's trade in and about this city are invited to visit the carpentry class of the Y. M. C. A. school which meets on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 in the carpenter's shop in the Boys' building. The course this year, as laid out by three well known builders of the city, is designed to teach the students the principles of house framing. The students work in groups of four, each one of whom frames a corner. Then each of the four corners is put together and the attention of each of the builders is turned to one of the four sides in which he constructs a window and a door and a well hole for stairs. The walls and the floor joists for the first, second, and third floors are put in place and eventually the roof is added to complete the structure. The course also covers the subject of outside house trim and inside house trim with special attention to stair building and the reading of working drawings. The instruction is by G. A. Robinson who has had wide experience at both outside and inside work in this city and others.

That the young men may get the most out of this course the enrollment is limited to 16.

JUDGE EGGLESTON DIES IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Dec. 1.—Following an illness of two years, Judge Arthur P. Eggleston, died at his home, 29 Windsor avenue, late yesterday from apoplexy and kidney trouble. He was born in Enfield, October 23, 1841, son of Jere D. and Louisa Eggleston and received his early education in Munson, Mass. In 1861 at the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted in the 46th Massachusetts Volunteers, serving until the regiment was mustered out. On his return from the war he entered Williams college, graduating in 1865, and entered the law office of Strong & Buck of this city. A few years after the death of Mr. Strong he entered into partnership with John E. Buck. Judge Eggleston during his life in the city was active in local Republican politics, holding several local offices.
